

青島・武石・クスマノ編『メイド・イン・ジャパンは終わるのか：奇跡と終焉の先にあるもの』
(東洋経済新報社、2010年) 補章英文文献リスト

Richard Katz, Japanese Phoenix: The Long Road to Economic Recovery (New York, M.E. Sharpe, 2003).

Alex Kerr, Dogs and Demons: Tales from the Dark Side of Japan (New York, Hill and Wang, 2001).

Edward J. Lincoln, Arthritic Japan : The Slow Place of Economic Reform (Washington, D.C., Brookings Institution Press, 2001).

John Nathan, Japan Unbound: A Volatile Nation's Quest for Pride and Purpose (Boston and New York, Houghton Mifflin, 2004).

John Nathan, Sony: The Private Life (Boston and New York, Houghton Mifflin, 1999).

Michael Porter, Hirotaka Takeuchi, and Mariko Sakakibara, Can Japan Compete? (Cambridge, MA, Perseus, 2000).

Richard J. Samuels, review of "Dogs and Demons" in The New York Times Sunday Book Review, April 15, 2001.

Karel van Wolferen, The Enigma of Japanese Power (Tokyo, Tuttle, 1993. First published by Pan MacMillan in 1989).

"What Ails Japan?" The Economist, April 18, 2002.

"Flying Again," The Economist, February 12, 2004.

"Japanese Company Debt: An End in Sight," The Economist, February 12, 2004.

"Japan's Economy: Surprise, Surprise," The Economist, February 19, 2004.

"Japan's Finances: A Touch-Up Won't Do," The Economist, March 11, 2004.

"Rising Again?" The Economist, April 15, 2004.

"The Great Fall of China?" The Economist, May 13, 2004.

"Japan's Technology Secrets: Protecting the Family Jewels," The Economist, June 24, 2004.

"Reviving Japan's Economy: There's No Place Like Home," The Economist, September 23, 2004.

"Dead Firms Walking," The Economist, September 23, 2004.

"The Sun Eventually Rises," The Economist, September 30, 2004.

"The Real Great Leap Forward" and "The Halo Effect," The Economist, September 30, 2004

"The Taxman Cometh," The Economist October 14, 2004.

"Heading South Again?" The Economist, November 18, 2004.